As Nor'easter Stella moves east, Frontier Communications’ teams in Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania have prepared for this significant winter storm.

Frontier updates its emergency response efforts on a continual basis, reviews lessons learned from prior severe weather, and is prepared for potential natural disasters and other emergencies that may occur. Preparations include:

- Equipping fleet vehicles with extra fuel, fluids and lighting;
- Double-checking all safety equipment, back-up power supplies, generators and materials used by field technicians;
- Placing emergency network supplies throughout company facilities; and
- Taking inventory of supplies needed for network restoration in the event of severe weather.

As of 12:00 p.m. ET on Tuesday, March 14, 2017, no major impacts have occurred to our network. Frontier will continue to evaluate the status of our network and our facilities. Additional notifications will be provided if impacts to our network occur.

If you have questions regarding the information provided in this notice, please email carrier.notifications@ftr.com.